Prologue

We enter the Crow's Nest—symbolic of passing across the threshold of the senior year!

Shall we ever forget the warm sensation that passed through us with the realization that at last all upperclassman privileges were ours? Will time ever dull that feeling of importance which we experienced when bewildered junior sisters looked to us for guidance?

Yet all was not a shining road of extra considerations; we had to assume responsibilities too. Into our tremulous hands passed the gavel of leadership. We knew that whatever was to be done to bring glory to Lasell, would have to be done largely by us. With minds turned toward the accomplishments of classes before us, and with our eyes upon the underclassmen who would follow our example, we picked up the challenge.

Firmly bound by a loyalty to our class, we set out on our royal venture. What we have done, how our time has been spent, we have herewith recorded for posterity.

DEDICATION

Miss Goodwin relaxing

RUTH GOODWIN

In grateful acknowledgment of the loyalty and devotion of Miss Ruth Goodwin to Lasell's dramatic activities, we, the Class of 1942, respectfully dedicate the LAMP to our beloved friend and teacher. Miss Goodwin not only coaches the two annual college plays, but also willingly assists in any production which calls for work on properties or dramatic interpretation.

Her guidance in dramatics, her comradely spirit, her charming presence will be missed by all those seniors who have had the privilege of knowing her. Because of her enthusiasm and her unselfish interest in all the work she undertakes, we extend our heartfelt thanks to her, with a sincere wish for her future happiness.

MY DEAR FRIENDS OF LASELL 1942:

Because we failed to stop international robbery after 1918, you go out into a world of total war. The enormous resources of the United Nations in men, materials, and manufacturing power, now being rapidly mobilized, will probably bring a favorable decision for our side sooner than now appears likely. You, like all the rest of us, will play your part and suffer your tragic losses.

May we hope at the end to have sufficient intelligence to demand that in the future some form of world police shall maintain world order.

Let's try!

Sincerely yours,

Guy M. Winslow

"Our stockings run. So let them run to Labrador." Waste material they go; back they come as rugs, a finished product. This is a simple illustration of what man is constantly achieving, something of value from what has been worthless.

Mistakes and failures—they come inevitably. My wish for you is that you so study those mistakes and failures that through those experiences you win as a by-product success, ultimate triumph out of every failure.

Margaret Rand

Commencement farewells should not be sorrowful, I think. Looking backward, something worthwhile has been accomplished. Moreover, the view lies ahead; youthful eyes see sunlit mountains and valleys coursed by sparkling streams. Doubtless we who are older have pitied you too much because you will not live lives of hurried pleasure. Instead you are born to an heroic age. Yours to labor and grow, to prove your courage and fortitude, to strive for great ideals,—“to strive and not to yield!”

We salute you.

Grace W. Sumner

TO THE SENIOR CLASS:

For most of you, June 1942 means the end of your days at school. For all of you, it marks the beginning of a new life—a life which, more than ever before, will call for service, sacrifice and a courageous spirit.

May you meet this future with fortitude and an unconquerable faith, and my wish for each and every one of you is that you may find in it happiness and contentment.

Walter R. Amestbury

DEAR SENIORS OF '42,

"The loveliest thing, wherever you go,
Is the touch of humanity, tender and true,
With a glimpse of man's brotherhood showing through."

God grant that you may remember this as you meet the challenge of the "new world" you are to help in making.

With all good wishes,

Stetson Preble McDonald

My fondest "Ellsworth" thoughts will ever be with you, dear girls of 1942. You have shown to me continually, through these past two years, qualities representing Lasell's truest ideals of integrity, loyalty, consideration of others, good sportsmanship, scholarship, and leadership. May the memories of our glorious experiences together here bring to you ever-increasing satisfaction, and serve to strengthen our bonds of loyalty toward each other and the school that we hold so dear.

Affectionately,

Karin L. Eliasson

Liberal Arts

The aim of the Liberal Arts course is not only to prepare and qualify students for entrance into senior colleges, but also to provide a well-rounded background in various fields of academic activity.

All juniors are required to take a course in English, and are encouraged to elect a course in speech, which develops poise in the individual.

Because the Liberal Arts course is so elastic, students may plan their course of study very much as they wish it to be.

For students who are interested in the writing field, courses in English composition, creative writing and journalism are of particular value. All journalism students automatically become members of the Lasell News staff. In that capacity they write articles, prepare copy for the printer, and set up the newspaper. Students with a special flair for writing comprise the staff of the Lasell Leaves.

Girls who are particularly interested in poetry and literature may elect any of the courses in English or American literature, as well as various history courses.

Oral English and Dramatic Interpretation afford excellent opportunities for self-expression. These courses train the student to overcome nervous mannerisms, and to deliver organized speeches.

Students studying dramatics read Pulitzer Prize plays, and selections from Shakespeare. The classes participate actively in the major productions of the Dramatic Club, and during the course of the year take trips to see the best plays in Boston. For those interested in play production, a course in stage design is offered.

Social sciences and biology are very popular with the Liberal Arts students, who enjoy "Mankind—Its Ways and Works." Courses in sociology and psychology impress the students with the importance of making adequate adjustments in order to live harmoniously with-in a group. A study of Social Problems acquaints the girls with such subjects as unemployment, group conflict, poverty, international democracy, education and juvenile delinquency. As part of these social science courses, first-hand information is given about the problems which they are studying through visits to various institutions.

Foreign language students have an opportunity to perfect their technique in the language of their choice. Most students entering Lasell with three years of a language to their credit are allowed to enter the advanced grammar course in that language during their junior year. When the intricacies of grammar have been mastered, the students concentrate on conversation. In the advanced French and Spanish courses, they are encouraged to present the plays which they have read in class. Latin and German, also popular courses, aid in vocabulary building, and lay a foundation for further scientific study.

Algebra, geometry, and trigonometry are the principal studies offered to math-minded students.

Any Liberal Arts student who feels she has extra time and energy after her program has been planned to include all the requirements, may elect almost any subject that the college offers. Fashion design, crafts, typing, music, interior decoration, advertising, fashion illustration, and related subjects fall into the category of "hobby subjects" for Liberal Arts students.

Music

Melodic strains of harmonious music fill the air as piano and organ students practice diligently, and voice pupils sing in solo or in groups, all preparing for a musical recital. Once during the first semester, and twice during the second, the music students present concerts as well as numerous small, informal recitals, all of which are requirements of the courses in voice study.

For weeks the vocalists practice feverishly. Finally the big night arrives. They pace the floor, they chew their fingernails, they die a thousand deaths; but at last it is over, and everyone breathes a sigh of relief. It wasn't so bad, was it?

Mr. George Sawyer Dunham, director of the music department, is instructor of piano, organ, harmony, and ensemble classes. As conductor of the Orphean Club, he trains us for the greatest event of the year, the annual Lasell night at the "Pops," when his Orpheanites sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Harold Schwab teaches piano and organ, and accompanies the Orphean Club as well. His classes are informal, and his keen sense of humor will be long remembered by his pupils. He accompanies all the voice students in their concerts.

Mr. Paul Bauguss is the able leader of the Glee Club, which presents an operetta.

Miss Mary Williams and Miss Helen Goodrich guide us over our scales and arpeggios, as we prepare for a singing career.

Throughout the year various opportunities to hear well-known musicians are provided, and music students are encouraged to attend the fine concerts available in nearby Boston and vicinity.

Art

A desire to create is all that is needed in the art department at Lasell, which offers as varied a selection of courses, on which to exercise these creative urges, as there are colors on a color chart.

If you are interested in interior decoration, then the studio, with all its excellent equipment and fine instruction, is where you belong. Then there is fashion illustration, an interesting as well as profitable business these days. There are also life drawing classes, and classes in technique and design. These studio classes participate in many outside activities, such as museum trips, fashion shows and sketching out of doors. Many of the posters you see advertising the dances and other social functions are done by art students.

As a background for this work there is a fascinating course in art history.

Those interested in sewing and fabrics in general may learn draping and pattern making. The girls learn to design and drape clothes on forms which they make of themselves, thereby learning to analyze their work, and create clothes best suited to them. This work also gives the students an opportunity to study costuming and its relationship to present day needs.

Another branch of the art department is the crafts laboratory, where the girls design and execute metal jewelry, pottery and clay models, plaster molds of their faces, wood cuts, printing and weaving.

Each type of work is planned with an eye to future professional work in the art world. All the excellent work of the department is displayed attractively each June to show achievement, progress, and possibilities. Certainly this department gives students an unlimited opportunity to express themselves.

Secretarial

Our medical secretarial, and straight secretarial courses have proved to be among the most popular of all those offered at Lasell.

Each week various types of typing budgets are assigned to the classes under strict rules and regulations of form. The budgets cover all types of office work which the girls would be likely to undertake in their future occupations. During the last year a great deal of time is well spent with the practicing of speed tests, and timed writings, for the purpose of acquiring better speed and accuracy. Constant practice is exercised for the building up of speed in shorthand also. The regularity of transcription helps the girls to become more efficient in the reading of shorthand.

If any girls should find it difficult to keep up with the rest of the class, a special class is formed, so that they will not have to progress so rapidly that they lose their accuracy.

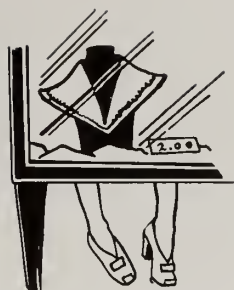

Along with the hard work and the practice of building up speed in shorthand and typewriting, the girls are taught how to use the various office machines, such as the adding machines, the duplicator, the mimeograph, and the ediphone. Gaining a little experience with each one gives every girl a chance to become better acquainted with these machines. At the end of the year, through the speed acquired, the girls are offered the chance to try for a certificate which is given only to those who accomplish the required rates of speed.

The medical secretarial course includes most of the subjects required in the straight secretarial course, plus general chemistry, anatomy, physiology, and nutrition. In addition, the girls have many opportunities to gain actual experience.

Merchandising

The merchandising course is designed to give students some background and experience for future work in the retail world. Practical knowledge of merchandise is obtained through the study of color, line, design, and clothing. English and speech are offered to train the girls to be alert and speak effectively. Social problems, economics, and psychology provide an understanding of the social and economic problems, which pertain to the field of retailing. As a reinforcement of this required preparation, additional courses are offered as electives. Among these are: art, oral and written English, social sciences, and languages. Typewriting is recommended for all students. For girls interested in home furnishings, a course in interior decoration is offered. Child care provides helpful training for children's ready-to-wear or toy departments. Practical experience is, of course, equally important. For this reason, a merchandiser must have twenty-four days of actual working experience accomplished during the Christmas and Easter vacations of her senior year.

To herald spring, the merchandisers planned a style show which they called "Fashion Maneuvers," and in which six of the students modeled while the rest were occupied with serving refreshments or taking care of sundry details.

The happy combination of theoretical class work and practical experience plus related extracurricular activity makes merchandising one of the most interesting courses at Lasell. This is due in no small part to the efforts of Mrs. Winifred Hudson, Miss Editha Hadcock, Miss Mary Worcester, and Miss Nellie Wright.

Home Economics

"What are you doing in your cooking uniform at this time of day?"

"P. K."

"Oh."

For all of the terseness of the answer there is a great deal that lies behind the simple term P. K., for the Practice Kitchen holds its own place in each home economics student's heart.

We had our difficulties with physiology and made many trips to Scollay Square for old antique magazines for our House Furnishings notebooks. Mr. Ordway initiated us into the elementary mysteries of making blue-prints, while Miss Worcester had her hands full meeting us every day, and sometimes twice a day during the second semester.

The awe with which we entered our first microbiology class was soon dispelled by Dr. Williams's easy manner with the subject.

We know our families were often amused during vacation when we attempted again the dishes that Miss Luce coached us in learning to make.

"Housecoats due next week? Heavens!" That began a domestic surge in many who had mistakenly believed that they had another week to finish the garment. We realized what exacting work a small linen hand towel could be.

Sometimes the people on the main floor glared at us as we emerged from our laboratory work in the chemistry department for mixing solutions which created such amazing odors.

Well, now that we are through, we must stand on our own feet and show the world that we know something about home economics.

Gym

The Physical Education Department is headed by Miss Muriel McClelland with Miss Virginia Tribou, Miss Mira Sawyer, and Mrs. Ethelyn Whitney Lenzi as her assistants. The Modern Dance classes were supervised by Mrs. Alice Paine Paul until she left and are now directed by Miss Sarajenny Annis, Miss Mary Small, and Miss Mary Hughes.

The Athletic Association, made up of every girl in the school, centers most of its activities around team games, and has the following officers: President, Charlotte Hall; Head of the Blues, Sue Nacher; and Head of the Whites, Louise Cook. In a big school assembly each girl drew for a button which was either blue or white, the one she drew representing her team while she was at Lasell. The two teams compete in every sport, and the winner of the most games at the end of the year receives the shield.

In the fall field hockey and soccer represent the two major after-school sports. Archery, tennis, and golf also claim many enthusiasts.

Winter brings the indoor sports, basketball and volley ball, with their exciting games, as well as the singles and doubles badminton tournaments, and the swimming meet.

In the spring after the swimming and strength tests, crew, the major sport of the season, begins. At the same time baseball, tennis, golf, archery, and swimming are in full swing.

River Day is the last and biggest affair of the athletic year, when the crew races are held on the Charles. Afterwards everyone gathers on the Athletic Field for the last athletic supper and the final baseball game between the Blues and the Whites.

Plays

The Dramatic Club of Lasell, assisted by Harvard students, presented this season, two productions, Jane Eyre and George Washington Slept Here.

Barbara Rockwell, as Jane Eyre, was supported by Carol Wadhams, Janet Reid, Charlotte Hall and June Foering.

The plays were directed and produced by Miss Ruth Goodwin, and staged with the assistance of Jimmie Hickman.

In George Washington Slept Here the lead was interpreted by Charlotte Hall. Aunt Carrie was played by Barbara Rockwell. Other roles included Peg Bull as Madge, Vida Pike as Rena Leslie, and Carol Wadhams as Mrs. Douglas. Other performers were Janet Reid, June Foering, Mary Dunbar, Adrienne Clancy, and Yvonne Rossman.

Shuffle

On October twenty-fifth, witches, cats, and pumpkins took over Winslow Hall, making the setting a realistic one for our first informal dance of the year, the Saddle Shoe Shuffle. Sponsored by the Dramatic Club of Lasell, it filled all our expectations for a gathering of fun, gay music, and laughter. On every window sat a lighted pumpkin, and the Hallowe'en idea was carried out in the gym, with orange and black streamers flowing from a large center ring.

Baron Hugo's orchestra supplied the music, which pleased everyone. The Baron himself led the Conga line.

Prom

At eight o'clock on the evening of February fourteenth, the campus was filled with gaiety and excitement, for the Lasell seniors and their escorts were heading toward Winslow Hall and their Senior Prom. There they danced to the music of Gene Dennis' orchestra.

The hall was decorated with the red and white designs of St. Valentine's Day, so conducive to romance. No decorations could have been more appropriate. Along the sides of the dance floor were grouped tables and chairs, where couples could pause and refresh themselves with punch and cookies.

Twelve o'clock came all too quickly, and everyone was sorry to have it over. Finally the dancers drifted homeward, with happy memories of a delightful evening.

Pageant

On December ninth the Modern Dance group, assisted by the Orphean Club, presented the story of the nativity. The opening scene showed the annunciation to Mary by the angels.

In the second scene shepherds expressed their adoration with uplifted hands. Mary, in the manger, sat silently beside the babe, a soft radiance shining about her head. The three kings and groups of peasants worshipped before her.

In the final scene Mary, in white, holding a single rose, stood on a Gothic pedestal. Maidens in white danced the Ave Maria before her.

The story was so vividly portrayed that the memory of it will long be cherished.

Snow Ball

With the excitement of Christmas vacation just ahead, the annual Snow Ball was held in Winslow Hall December sixth, and was attended by couples who were already in the holiday spirit.

White bells, blue cellophane bows and packages all ready for Christmas, coupled with dresses of every deep and pastel shade formed the complete decorations of the dance.

There three hundred couples danced to the syncopating music of Don Gahan's orchestra, and tried out the latest dance steps. The grand march, which was held at the height of the evening, was led by Dr. and Mrs. Winslow, and ended with the singing of the Alma Mater. The orchestra presented a number of novelty pieces, which everyone enjoyed.

Cap and Gown

At eleven-thirty on the night of November twelfth, Lasell's seniors, wearing their caps and gowns for the first time, marched softly away from Gardner Hall, where they had gathered, toward Dr. Winslow's home, where, also for the first time, they sang their Cap and Gown song.

From there, carrying the traditional white lighted candles they proceeded to each of the houses on campus, serenading the juniors, who leaned out of their windows to catch a better view of the impressive group. Although the listeners were perhaps inspired, it was the seniors who felt the greatest thrill.

On the following day each senior received a beautiful corsage of gardenias from the junior class, a true climax to the taking Cap and Gown.

River Day

Spring at Lasell...it's wonderful! Why? Crew, of course!

"Stroke ... back ... stroke ... back ... pull together...pull!" When River Day finally comes the excitement is at its height. The spectators have their favorites, and each crew is out to do its best. When the race is about to start, each crewman grasps her paddle and prays that she will have the strength to help paddle her crew to victory. The coxswain looks up the river at the flag markers, and wonders if she will be able to keep on the course. Mr. Ordway, our coach, is in his motor boat ready to start the race.

"Go!" Each boat starts out with amazing speed. Some will win, some will lose... yet the spirit is there in either case.

I think it's tipping...

June Fête

Each year we excitedly anticipate the choosing of the June Queen. After a student election, the names are withheld until the moment when the queen and her court appear at the head of the student procession, before the assembled crowd of students, faculty members, and guests at the Crow's Nest.

After the crowning, which officially opens the June Fête, the students and court proceed to Winslow Hall, where the Home Economics department presents its style show.

Then, on the athletic field, the Modern Dance group presents a pageant, which is noted for its lovely costuming, and the grace of its performers.

Hockey

One of Lasell's favorite sports is hockey. After the new girls have enthusiastically arrived, and old girls have returned with eager spirit, it is then that friendship and team play are discovered in the athletic field. With vim and vigor the players this year swung hefty "lunges" and "bulled" on a crisp autumn afternoon. The juniors produced many fine players who battled hard against the seniors.

Heading hockey this year was "Cricket" Hall, while Miss "Mac" and Miss Sawyer did the coaching for the evenly matched Blue and White teams.

One of the highlights of the season was the game between the faculty and the students. On a nippy day, the faculty presented itself in "Longies" and heavy sweat shirts. In spite of their brilliant playing, our teachers bowed to the students after a fast and hard-fought game.

Those who played this year benefited greatly by all that the sport required.

Soccer

Lasell's soccer enthusiasts appeared on the athletic field as soon as the fall wind started to blow, and the Blue and White teams had been chosen, for soccer is one of the first sports of the new school year.

While the girls unpacked their belongings, they unpacked a wonderful school spirit also. With a definite goal for everyone to reach, girls who wanted real fun, exercise, and proof of their good sportsmanship came out faithfully to put their kicks in for their team. It was the Whites against the Blues, and the seniors against the juniors.

First there were weeks of practice with a lot of hard kicking. Miss Tribou led and coached the players on for the big games and final victory for either team.

Finally the big day arrived. The seniors played against the juniors. After keen competition, accompanied by shrill and eager cries, the juniors came through with flying colors.

Golf

Oh, how we longed, during the winter months, for the warm days ahead when we would hear the old, familiar sound of the motorized lawn mower; and when we finally did hear it, we dashed to our windows and squealed with delight as we saw the men getting the golf course into shape. Soon we checked up on our balls, dusted off our golf clubs, and gathered up our tees, for the golf season had arrived.

From then on girls with golf bags slung over their shoulders were a familiar sight on Woodland Road, and almost any hour of the day one could see girls alone or in groups swinging away over the green, rolling course, or practicing putting on the greens.

Mr. Duffy, a pro from the Trapelo Country Club in Waltham, taught us the proper techniques twice a week for about two hours each day.

The annual golf tournament brought out about twenty-five players. What a fine time we had competing with each other, too. Yes, golf was a sport we truly enjoyed at Lasell, one we are glad we did not miss.

Tennis

After a long winter, everyone was anxious to get some good, healthy exercise out-of-doors. As soon as the courts were rolled, lined and had nets up, a happy throng of tennis enthusiasts donned their tennis togs, dusted off their tennis racquets, searched frantically for last year's balls, and sprinted with much excitement to the courts at Bragdon, Gardner and Woodland. There they tried their hand at the game for the first time after the winter months.

Those first few days showed that a winter without any practice made one's tennis game rather rusty. However, after a few afternoons of good hard practice, all those stiff joints were limber once more and the games moved forward smoothly.

The fall tournament was run off with great success. Louise Crawford and Helen Raymond were the finalists, and the latter was the winner.

The tennis team practiced every afternoon for the annual match with the Brookline High School tennis team. Friendly competition with an outside team made all the preparation truly worthwhile.

Archery

In the fall and in the spring one of the sports in which novices and champions alike can have equal fun is archery. This is one of the few sports which beginners can enjoy right from the start, for they can quickly learn the correct positions, and find their point of aim. Soon the new archers begin to get higher and higher scores.

One of the benefits of archery is the development of good posture. Also, archery is a sport that can be played at leisure and with ease, for the activity required is not, for the most part, too strenuous. For this reason, archery can be enjoyed not only now, but also in the years to come.

In the spring the archery tournament becomes a lure to all the players. The girl who gets the highest score in the tournament becomes the captain of the team for the following year.

After the archers have had a few hours of practice on the field, any passerby may hear the whizzing sound of arrows, and then... "Bull's eye!"

Archery is an inexpensive sport, after the equipment has been bought, so that in these times the player can have fun and be economical at the same time.

Dancing

Modern dancing is a language, particularly a language of the feelings. Almost everyone possesses the capacity for learning to express feeling through the dance by interpretation. Out of the rhythm of body movements grows a fine sense of rhythm and balance.

One of the most notable effects on persons who have seriously studied modern dancing, is their grace of carriage and of movement. While it is not true that the amount of attention given to poise in dance is as great as that given in military training, it is undoubtedly true that the grace of movement acquired through dancing exceeds that acquired in military schools.

Modern dancers believe that there is no single thing more conducive to good carriage than the training of young people in the forms of dancing. Vigorous dancing is to be classed with mountain climbing, running, playing tennis, and other sports which are recognized as having the deepest effect upon the health of the body. Modern dancing should prove a great joy and help to all those who participate in such activity.

Swimming

Splash! Any Wednesday afternoon, down in the pool, one could see Lasell girls practicing for swimming meets, some catching up on their speed, others perfecting their form. Such exclamations from the coach as "Legs straight!", "Kick from the hips!", and "One two! One two!" were all too familiar to the swimmers.

Nancy Gorton's fine free styling, and Marilyn Isenberg's good form were a great asset to any team, while Betsy McMullen's faithfulness spurred us all on.

On Friday nights before study hour the pool was often full of girls who were just swimming for fun. Although they had not chosen the sport as part of their course, they derived just as much enjoyment out of the activity. Some girls splashed around playing tag, or trying formations, while others played follow the leader. Many were the times that a portable radio could be heard broadcasting a favorite program while the owner enjoyed a swim.

Although the swimming teams had some difficulty arranging meets, the good times were numerous, and every swimmer was sorry to have the season end.

Riding

One of the most enjoyable sports at Lasell is riding. Among the highlights of the riding club activities this year were the breakfast rides which horse enthusiasts enjoyed in the fall and spring. Some nights the Baby Bens were set for 5 a.m. Six a.m. found the riders being picked up by a beach wagon which took them to the stables in Weston. Then each girl chose her favorite mare. The trail led them eventually to a small doughnut shop where, after tying up the horses to whatever substituted for a hitching post, the sleepy proprietor was aroused enough to make some flapjacks and coffee.

After breakfast the girls trotted the horses back to the stables regretting that they couldn't stay out longer, but the little small matter of classes interfered.

Many girls took supervised riding for their regular gym periods and a few tried high jumping. The Lasell seniors bequeath to the juniors an idea which has not yet been worked on—a Lasell cavalry unit.

The bridle paths within reach of Lasell are so lovely that we are reluctant to have to say goodbye to them now.

Posture

"Side, together, together—side, together, together..." and on and on Miss Try's voice spurs us until the desperation in the eyes of the posture class reminds her of the morrow's aches and pains. And these physical discomforts are not to be taken lightly, for the posture classes anticipate the future bodily grace and poise that are bound to be realized from such strenuous efforts—efforts which play a serious part in the activity of any student who wants to improve herself physically. But aches and pains, or no aches and pains, posture is important to anyone, and the posture classes are particularly aware of that fact.

The exercises are a weary and tedious grind at first, but they repay us double fold. Not only can there be a marvelous transformation from curving spines and slouched shoulders to straight-backed grace and physical healthiness, but also the class members have quantities of fun and good times just as one does in any other sport. With such training the students learn fundamentals which they can practice always.

Results

Badminton

When the ground was covered with snow, and the temperature was at a very low degree, Lasell girls had to get their exercise some place other than out-of-doors. Many found that by knocking the badminton bird to and fro once or twice a week in the gym, they were able to keep themselves in fine condition.

Recently, badminton has become very popular all over the country, and Lasell girls have come to realize what the game offers. Consequently, a great deal of enthusiasm has been shown in that sport this winter, and all the players have enjoyed themselves tremendously.

By January the annual singles and doubles tournaments were well under way. Both resident students and day students took part in the competition. Marty Pangborn, head of badminton, worked hard to bring enthusiasm into the game this season, and the results of the tournament showed that she succeeded. From all reports, the many girls who participated in the tournament spent many happy hours at the game, and everyone played to win with that well-known "Lasell fighting spirit."

On your toes!

Basketball

In the gym every Monday and Thursday, one could hear the running and jumping from one end of the gym to the other, the sound of the whistle, and the shouts of players when a basket was made. These were the after-school practice sessions of our most exciting winter sport, basketball, coached by Miss Virginia Tribou, captained by Marion Beers, and claiming over 50 players.

Next came the class games and more excitement. The players were organized into five teams: Senior I, Senior II, Junior I, Junior II, and the Specials. The Senior I's and the Junior I's both still undefeated met in the final class game with the Juniors emerging victorious 28-17 and proving their worth.

Then came the last and most exciting of all, the Blue and White Game, with loyal teammates rooting from the sidelines. The Whites won, 40-31, after the Blues put up a hard fight.

A real finale to the season of tip-offs and scores was the basketball and volleyball outdoor steak supper, held at the end of our busy season. It was a party which we look forward to all year.

Off your feet!

Volleyball

Volleyball was in full swing this year, with many eager new and old members participating. Enthusiastic athletes faithfully arrived at practice on Monday afternoons and played together under the able guidance of Miss Mira Sawyer.

With the juniors and the seniors showing equal ability, many breathtaking games were played. The Blue and White games proved extremely exciting, with the Blues coming out victorious. Then there was the occasion when the honored faculty played against the members of the volleyball club. What an exciting game it was! The shouting from the side lines added to the hilarity, and the volleyball club members came through with flying colors, undefeated.

To terminate the season a picnic was held on the athletic field. We cooked our own meal outdoors over an open fire, and had a truly wonderful time.

Perhaps there wasn't very much publicity about volleyball this year, but those of us who participated in the sport enjoyed every minute of it. Volleyball is truly the sport for every girl, and one which makes every girl a good sport.

Baseball

When it is spring our hearts turn to baseball as we run out to the athletic field and start pitching and swinging. "Everyone to her position!" The infield warm-up—pitcher to first, to second, to third. Ready to start! Batter up! First the wind-up, then the ball comes zooming toward the plate. "Three strikes! You're out!" You can't argue with the ump. We foul out, fly out, ground out, and are forced out. To the pitcher's woe we hit singles, doubles, triples, and even homers as we round the bases with the applause in our ears. Everyone must have her turn pitching! Up soars the ball, and a spectacular catch is made! In baseball there is breathless excitement, running and sliding, and the shouts and cheers of players and onlookers.

After the practice sessions, we have our class games between the seniors and juniors. Last of all is the big Blue and White game, which takes place after the crew supper, with the spectators taking sides and cheering. Yes, it is a fitting climax to a wonderful and most successful athletic season.

We are only sorry that we won't be able to come back for another game next year.

Crew

Spring and crew are synonymous at Lasell. Crew is one of our most popular sports, for there is something about a strenuous afternoon on the Charles River that appeals to almost every girl.

After passing a swimming and strength test, each girl is eligible to go out in the large "war canoes," which hold eight girls and a captain. The latter is chosen for her strength and skill in handling a canoe.

Mr. Ordway, assisted by Miss McClelland, go up and down the Charles in motor launches giving the girls pointers on how to improve their strokes and speed. In mid-afternoon, the crews line up at a starting point, and have practice races down the river, in preparation for the grand finale, River Day.

Crew requires a great deal of practice, but the girls work with a will. However, the canoeists are amply rewarded when, at six o'clock, they paddle into a small cove for a picnic supper.

As they paddle home in the twilight, the Lasellites sing together, keeping time with the strokes of their paddles.

Heads of Sports

Nothing in college seems to attract more girls than sports do, and Lasell offers a wide variety.

Early in the fall, hockey and soccer get under way. The girls this year came out after school whole-heartedly to develop their ability and sportsmanship. Heading hockey was "Cricket" Hall; Betty Polhemus headed soccer.

Tennis, golf, archery, and riding are popular in the fall and spring. At the head of these sports were, Helen Raymond, Mary Ann Fisher, Anne Lynch, and Phyllis Edmiston respectively.

Midwinter offers basketball, volleyball, swimming, and badminton. This year's flock of enthusiasts for basketball was under the leadership of Marion Beers. Claire Nolan took charge of volleyball, and Louise Cook captained the swimming teams. Badminton, everybody's sport, had no captain.

As the winter snows thawed, the baseball fans, under the guiding hand of Claire Nolan, took to the diamond, while crew, the most popular sport, was headed by Sue Naehrer.

Dancing has no season. All during the year the modern dancers worked steadily to develop a graceful carriage, and to learn coordination of the body. Heading dancing was Barbara Smith.

Lasell's Athletic Association was under the presidency of "Cricket" Hall, who was elected early in the fall.

The student body is divided into two teams, the Blues and the Whites. Each girl, at the beginning of the year, draws from a box a button. If it is blue, she automatically becomes a member of the Blue team; if it is white, she is a member of the White team. Sue Naehrer led the Blues this year; Louise Cook, the Whites. Throughout the year competition between these two teams was keen. As is the custom, every sport has a Blue and White game.

Government

Each student at Lasell accepts membership in the College Government Association, which carries with it obligations and responsibilities as well as privileges. Our officers for this year, who were elected the previous June, included: President, Trudy Ruch; Vice President, Betty Polhemus; Secretary, Ann Lynch; Treasurer, Mary Hurley.

In November, 1941, Lasell was represented by four Student Council delegates and Miss MacClelland at the annual Junior College Conference held at Colby Junior College. As a result of the conference, experimentation with the honor system was initiated at Clark Cottage for one month.

The Council activities also included two dances as well as the May Cotillion weekend.

This year the Student Council has progressed steadily towards more student participation in the activities of the school. The one wish of its members is that even deeper interest and cooperation may develop in the future.

News

The Lasell News, the college's bi-monthly publication, has a staff composed of the beginning and advanced journalism classes, which do all the work with the exception of the printing. Each student is assigned a certain number of news series or features for each issue. In addition to writing for the paper, the girls also count words, proof-read, type, write headlines, and lend a hand on dummy day.

Every other Monday the staff arranges and mails the copy, and every other Wednesday "dummies" the news. On "dummy day" the girls set up the paper, write the headlines, paste the dummy, and mail the final form to the printer. Other class periods are devoted to discussing other newspapers, and to planning for the future issues.

The Lasell News contains news, features, stories, editorials, poetry, sports news, and campus comments of the juniors and seniors.

The editor-in-chief is Mary Hurley; the associate editors, Claire DeConto and Anne Haskell.

Leaves

The Lasell Leaves, a quarterly magazine, serves as an outlet for the literary talents of the college.

For its material the Leaves draws heavily on the creative writing classes, the English Department, and journalism students.

Patricia Annis, the artistically inclined Editor-in-Chief, handled the art end of the magazine. During her editorship, she sketched all the covers and most of the cartoons. Claire DeConto, associate editor and a journalism student, was actively engaged in the literary work, contributing articles, short stories, and poems, as well as giving her time selecting and revising material. Marjorie Allyn, associate editor, handled the arduous task of preparing copy for the printer.

When all the material had been selected, revised, and typed, the copy went to the printer. It came back and was carefully proofread by the faculty sponsor, Mrs. Donald Winslow, and her helpers. Sent again to the printer, and this time returned as page proofs, the material was again proofread. When the page proofs were returned to the printer, the Leaves came back as the finished product.

Lamp

Not for a good many years has the LAMP of Lasell been in such a turmoil as that of the class of 1942. From the beginning of September, when "Cricket" Hall filled the empty seat of last year's editor-in-chief, to the day the book went to press, the word "priorities" was constantly repeated.

Heading the business end of the LAMP was Marjorie Ray, who conscientiously spent her time collecting the necessary payments. "Cricket" Hall's right-hand man, "Little Mary" Metzger, did everything from checking glossies to collecting write-ups. The left-hand man was Raye Leonard, photographic editor, who was constantly seen rounding up people, props, and pictures. "Pep" Annis, art editor, donated her talent to the worthy cause. Also to be mentioned is the unselfish and generous way in which members of the junior and senior classes offered their services to make the 1942 LAMP one to be proud of.

The Staff wishes, most of all, to express its gratitude to Mrs. Donald Winslow, who faithfully gave a patient, untiring hand to help us present the 1942 LAMP.

Glee Club

Every Tuesday afternoon at 3:20 some twenty-odd girls tramped to Bragdon chapel to meet their amiable director, Mr. Paul Bauguss, for an hour of singing and fun. This year, as a result of their practice, the club members appeared in public three times.

The first performance of the group came this fall when the Glee Club and orchestra gave a joint program, which was enthusiastically received by an audience of faculty and students. This was the first joint concert of its kind to be given at Lasell in several years.

Just before Christmas recess the Glee Club took part in the traditional Gothic Fête, accompanying the modern dancers.

The twenty-fourth of April brought to a fitting climax the year's work when the Glee Club presented the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, The Mikado, the dramatics for which were supervised by Miss Goodwin. The girls worked hard many afternoons and evenings. Their efforts were rewarded on opening night when the performance went from start to finish with every line packed with humor.

"The Mikado"

Choir

Under the able direction of Miss Mary E. Williams, voice teacher, a large and successful choir was formed this year. Wearing the traditional blue choir robes, the choir led the singing in Vespers every Sunday. The members are all music-loving students, who enjoy singing together in a choral group. Several new anthems were learned, and on the whole this choral group enlivened the singing of the hymns in the audience. With the musical assistance, on the organ, of Miss Karin Eliasson and Miss Helen Beede on alternate Sundays, choir singing has become one of the attractions of Sunday evening Vespers. At the last Vesper service before Christmas vacation, the choir prepared a special program of carol singing. On Thursday evening of each week, the choir met in Winslow Hall to rehearse for the following Sunday's service.

With graduation the choir singing ended, to be started in the fall again with a new group. As we who had the pleasure of singing in the choir bid our fond farewells, we hope that those who fill our places will enjoy it as much as we have.

Concert at Lasell

Orphean

The girls chosen for the Orphean Club undergo a remarkable change between the time they first find their way to Bragdon Chapel and the anxiously awaited night of Pops. From the moment Mr. George Sawyer Dunham, our able director, takes over the unskilled group of singers, improvement can be seen. Rehearsals were held at Bragdon Hall, and with Mr. Schwab at the piano we made the rafters ring.

This year the club made its first public appearance on March 13, at a performance with the M.I.T. Glee Club, in Winslow Hall. The program was varied so that each club sang several numbers. Dancing followed the concert. Later, at M.I.T., a second joint concert was given. On another occasion the club performed with the Auburndale Community Orchestra.

With spring came May 16 and Lasell night at Pops. Dressed in our spring finery and determined to do our best, we Orphean Club members took our places behind the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, and looked to Mr. Dunham for inspiration. This performance was indeed a great success.

Rehearsal at Winslow

Orchestra

The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Paul Bauguss, has been busy this year preparing for various performances. Musicians practiced both at rehearsals and by themselves. At intervals during many busy months we could hear beyond the classrooms the tones of a violin or bass fiddle going over and over difficult passages, and the Bragdon practice rooms became a familiar sight to various hard-working players. In the spring, with all the Bragdon windows open, the faint tones of the instruments came floating down to passers by on Woodland Road, and those who knew realized that a program was on its way to completion with such practice and many weekly rehearsals.

The orchestra and Glee Club presented a joint concert at Christmas time in Winslow Hall. The Mikado score was worked out as an accompaniment for the operetta, presented by the Glee Club on April 24. This performance marked the climax of the work done by the orchestra this year.

Some of the members of the orchestra also belong to the Community orchestra.

Dramatics

The Dramatic Club of Lasell began this year with a meeting in Winslow Hall of old members and new girls who wished to join.

In October the club sponsored the first dance of the year, an informal, appropriately called the Saddle Shoe Shuffle. Everyone had a merry evening dancing to the music of Baron Hugo's orchestra.

November saw the production of Jane Eyre, a dramatization written by Marjorie Carleton. The author honored Lasell by being present opening night. The male characters were ably interpreted by several members of the Harvard Dramatic Club. In March the club staged George Washington Slept Here. Again the Harvard Dramatic Club collaborated. Miss Ruth Goodwin was the encouraging and ideal director for both plays.

The Workshop Play, which represented the final fling of the club, was presented the last of May. This spectacle was written, produced, and directed by a group of Lasell students.

The officers of the club were: President, Barbara Rockwell; Vice-President, Louise Crawford; Secretary, Margaret Wolfe; and Treasurer, Helen Cizek.

Anticipating approval

Modern Dance

The Modern Dance Club is for students who have a special interest in dancing. These girls take part in extra activities requiring additional time. Meetings are held regularly under the able instruction of Mrs. Alice Paine Paul and Miss Sarajenny Annis. The officers of the club are Barbara Smith, president, and Noel Temple, secretary-treasurer. Exercises to aid in muscular development and control of the body are continually stressed. An important feature of the club is original interpretive dancing which gives the girls a chance to develop their ingenuity.

In the fall the club sponsored an evening of old fashioned square dancing at Winslow Hall. In December, the traditional Christmas pageant was presented by the dance group, assisted by the Glee Club. The life of Mary was portrayed through the medium of the dance and music with beautiful lighting effects. Part of this pageant was later repeated by twelve club members at the Dance Symposium at Bradford Junior College. At the annual June Fete the Modern Dance group presented a Spanish Fiesta with all its gaiety and color.

Beauty through grace

Parlez-vous français

French

Le Cercle Français, Lasell's French club, to which all girls taking French courses or having a knowledge of the French language are eligible, has offered many interesting activities to its members this year. With the help from our faculty advisor, Madame Bailly, we have managed to meet French students—both boys and girls—from various surrounding colleges such as M.I.T., Wellesley, Harvard, and Simmons College. Most of our activities have been with the M.I.T. boys, who have given teas, invited us to dinner, and also to a dance. We have reciprocated with teas here at Lasell. The club has also attended French movies and French plays. The picnic we had at the end of the year we very much enjoyed.

Our club meetings have given us an opportunity to meet and speak with people of foreign countries, and to sing their songs. Such experience has been invaluable to us all.

Si, Señoritas!

Spanish

All the girls who are taking Spanish courses are members of the Spanish Club this year. Señora Orozco and Señora Cobb are the faculty advisors of the organization. The officers who were elected at the end of the last school year are: President, Evelyn Nurkiewicz; Secretary, Ruth Purcell; Treasurer, Patricia Durant.

The club holds its meetings after classes every other Wednesday afternoon in Bragdon. At one of the meetings Teta Dunbar spoke to the club about her native home, Chile. At other times the members play Spanish games, sing Spanish songs, and converse in Spanish. After mid-year exams the group had a party.

The final meeting of the year was held in Bragdon Chapel on Wednesday evening, May 13. The third year class gave the play Uno De Los Dos Debe Casarse. Between the acts Miss Eliasson accompanied the other Spanish students in the singing of songs they had learned for class.

Endowment

Raising money for the Endowment Fund is one of the activities of every senior class of Lasell. This fund is used to provide additions and improvements on campus. Winslow Hall, the street lanterns at Bragdon, and scholarships have been financed through Endowment contributions.

Bridges, teas, movies, and the sale of sandwiches in junior dormitories are among the activities sponsored for raising money. This year the Endowment Fund Committee was very fortunate in having a Lasell Pops Concert at Winslow Hall. Mr. Dunham directed his orchestra in an excellent series of musical numbers. The members of the Fund committee wish to express their deep appreciation to Mr. Dunham for his generous help in directing this concert for their benefit.

The Variety Show, which is presented by the students and faculty at Winslow Hall in the spring, is also given by the Endowment Fund.

Aside from these activities, each girl in the senior class sets her own goal for her contribution for the year. It is with willingness and pride in Lasell that each girl cooperates to help swell the amount of this fund.

Social Service

One of the newest and one of the most inclusive of all the organizations at Lasell is the Social Service Organization. Its needs are great; its opportunities, plentiful.

Among other activities the group sponsored a mite box supper each month for such causes as Chinese Relief, Russian Relief, British Relief, U.S.O., Red Cross and Newton Welfare.

Newspapers, tin foil, and stamps were saved. Many Lasell girls journeyed to Fort Devens to entertain the convalescent soldiers, and the organization also sponsored a dance at Winslow Hall for the Devens men.

Every other month an exciting mystery movie was presented to raise money for Social Service activities.

One of the major events of the year was the Red Cross house competition. For three months everybody worked steadily (especially Dillingham House, the winner), making hundreds of diapers, sweaters, toddler suits, nightshirts and panty suits.

We shall continue to carry on our activities, and hope that we may, in the future, be of even greater service to the community.

Who Told You So?

Shortly after the declaration of war, the students organized a "Who Told You So?" Club here at Lasell. Johnnie Johnson was appointed president of the club, and it was agreed that she be the only officer. A large number of responsible girls were chosen from the junior and senior classes as members.

The purpose of this new club is to prevent false war rumors from circulating around the college campus, and to put a stop to any loose talk about the location of ships that are docked or on the high seas. Of course many of the girls know a great number of army and navy men whom they see during week ends and at the various college functions. Naturally conversation turns to the war, and sometimes a casual remark develops swiftly into a rumor, which quickly spreads.

The idea of a "Who Told You So?" Club is not a new one, for similar clubs have been organized in many colleges and communities throughout the country.

Members of the group this year hope that the club will continue its good work next year, with the same satisfactory results.

France Forever

The voice of America that reaches out to over ten million Frenchmen through daily shortwave broadcasts is a shining light to the people who are suffering under the Nazi regime. France, despite the massacre of hostages, despite hunger and subjugation, remains true to the civilization that is her heritage. America and the France Forever organizations are the links that connect and inform these tortured people of France.

France Forever, under the inspired leadership of General Charles de Gaulle, speaks to America for the French people. The Free French troops have made considerable advance in Africa, and are now constructing a road for airplane transportation that will enable planes to pass through India into Russia.

The Lasell unit of France Forever has attended parties with the Harvard movement, and mass meetings with the Boston Chapter. In March Dr. Frank Blackmore spoke to the student body, explaining the aims and purpose of the France Forever organizations. Two members of the Harvard unit also addressed the group at Woodland one evening. The unit also sponsored a small, informal victory "Vic" dance.

Alma Mater

Bound firm by a bond unbroken
Love for Old Lasell,
Take we now a pledge outspoken
E'er to guard her well.

Alma Mater, fidelitas!
Pledge, girls, for loyalty!
Sing we now before we part,
We'll ever faithful be.

Bright school days are quickly past;
Enjoy them while you may,
Mem'ries still shall them outlast,
When we are far away.

Alma Mater, fidelitas!
Pledge, girls, for loyalty!
Sing we now before we part,
We'll ever faithful be.

Senior Cap and Gown Song

Tonight we seniors sing in cap and gown
The praises of Lasell that we have found.
We bear the LAMP, the symbol, and our seal,
And tender thoughts, Lasell, our hearts reveal.
We take our pledge tonight of loyalty
With heads held high, we stand for liberty.
Through all the years to come we'll ne'er forget
The first real glory found and friends we've met.
O Cap and Gown, thy symbol we revere,
And Alma Mater that's so close and dear.
We face the world with spirit bright and true,
We are the Senior Class of Forty-two.

Table Song

(Tune: "WE'LL MEET AGAIN")

April has come and our tables we take
We're the happy seniors of Lasell this year.
Just one more mem'ry we will never forsake
When at the tables seniors all appear.
We have a smile on our lips
A song in our hearts
For this scene that now takes place.
Each senior knows in her heart
That she's played a part
She will ne'er retrace or misplace.
Now as we sing at our tables with cheer
You can tell that Lasell seniors are sincere.

Gardner

"One for all, and all for one" was the motto of the Gardner girls (the "G Girls" for short). And as many of us said this last year, "We never dreamed that living in a senior house could be so much fun."

That was a wonderful, silly Hallowe'en party we had, where everyone not only looked but also acted like a monkey. Remember when, in the midst of packing grips and washing our hair, we took out enough time to have a hilarious Christmas party just before we went home for a glorious three weeks?

Everyone has a birthday, especially the G Girls, who not only would be spanked and kissed on their big day, but would have a scrumptious birthday party that night. There would always be surprise ones too. Never will we forget the Friday night we had the birthday supper in the kitchen, when we had twenty people to feed. What did we eat? Home made Italian spaghetti, rice pudding with raisins, and cup cakes. The bicarb did a rushing business that night.

The pay-off, though, came the night the Easter Bunny paid us all a visit, and left a lovely little nest filled with Easter eggs.

Remember those exciting evenings when one girl would be going to a formal, and with the help of 8 or 9 of us she finally became presentable? Then there were those lazy afternoons when we did nothing but sing and play cowboy songs on the piano.

It was an exciting year that we spent in Gardner, and we shall cherish the memories of it always.

Pickard

Pickard saw many personalities come and go between September and February. Finally the house settled down with seven members—namely, our president Mary Metzger, Mary Dobson, Betty Allen, Peggy Smitt, Muriel Stark, Charlotte Ann Hall, and Dorothea Godfrey.

Friday night never failed to bring seven dinner cuts, and Pickard's kitchen was filled with odors of Starkey's fried onions, and Cricket's and Jidfrey's "Copley-in-the-can" coffee. Remember how Metager, Dobby, and Betty trotted around with one tea bag for eight cups of tea? Defense measure! Enthusiasm for defense also drove Cricket and Jidfrey to scrape the sugar off cookies for their nightly coffee.

Pickard's inmates had many idiosyncrasies. We marvel at Metager's small feat of taking a five-minute bath, and the never-ceasing thrill she got from that Cleveland Heights letter. Betty always made endless preparations for bed; she began at nine and finally said good night at eleven. All too frequently we heard Jidfrey's "I love you best" as she looked from Tom's picture to Gar's, while Cricket marked the days off her three calendars until she saw Princeton, and consoled herself with the cartoon in her daily letter. Nothing ever seemed to upset Dobby, as she peacefully moved on from day to day, with her sewing or knitting tucked under her arm. On Friday nights we used to see Smitty dressing for her one o'clock. We also discovered Starkey's two ambitions in life—to sleep through all her eight-thirties, and to board the Providence train.

That was Pickard...our favorite house.

Carpenter

We started out the year with some Bragdon girls and some Woodland girls in two very distinct groups, but ended up with a wonderful gang of Carpenterites.

Remember the calls to the Infirmary, and the Hallowe'en Party at which Senora told our fortunes? And those evenings when Sue's man was in the hall saying goodnight as the bell rang? Those sessions in Bette's, "Little Joe's," and "Super-man's" room were certainly fun. Remember the sign Charlotte's man left on the front door, and the day the man didn't bring Mrs. Silver's laundry until eleven-thirty? That was a tasty combination on the first floor—"Ham" Nelson and "Egg" Egglefield. Who could forget the pigeon's nest on Joanie's and Marie's fire escape, or Seaman's bearskin? Remember Wally's army hat, Sissy Poo's dress for the Senior Ball, Lange's piano concertos, and Marcia's budget blues? Those P. K. girls used to get up at the crack of dawn, but we know it was all worthwhile. Remember Nina's extended vacations, Gracie and her flannel outfit, the peroxide fad, and Sue Miller's crate of oranges? There was plenty of excitement in the house when Wally and Sue announced their engagements. Then there were those exciting moments like fire drills, blackouts, and the Sunday night "Inner Sanctum." And will you ever forget Jeff's "Two O'clock Jump," or the boys from the B. School.

It really was the life! May we never forget our wonderful year at Carpenter.

Conn

From those first days in the fall of 1941 grew a feeling of real comradeship among the residents of Conn House.

Remember when we cooked ourselves magnificent dinners at the house with five cheese sandwiches apiece and more beans than forty people could eat? And the way the vic used to blast away for those jam sessions? It was a real day of celebration when Dug returned from Christmas vacation with a beautiful sparkler for the third finger, left hand. There was always a vase of flowers in her room. In competition, Barry offered her daily manuscripts from Michigan, or Normie, her bi-monthly illustrated from Elyria, Ohio.

There was our cozy Christmas dinner too, with candles, pine wreaths, and tangerines.

The hasty collector of nickels and dimes, a mad dash out to the truck and much licking of lips meant spring and the Good Humor man for the Connites.

Numerous diets were started and morning exercises too, but they went the way of all such intentions.

For the Red Cross we made sweaters, sleepers, diapers and were proud to be second in the all-college competition.

Remember that spread from the Hayton household! Never did Mim miss catching the train for Scituate on a week end. Remember Jonni, her many admirers, her "drafts", and Mac with her knitting needles, her ride to dinner, and those trips to Marblehead? Yes, we shall always remember those days at Conn.

Clark

A two-story house with fourteen rooms, yellow paint, typewriters, radios, stuffed animals, alarm clocks, college banners, souvenirs, teachers and fifteen happy-go-lucky girls—that was Clark Cottage. We had all kinds here, from dark, tall Trudy to blonde, petite Priscilla; from quiet, conscientious Shirley to sports-minded, happy Ray-Ray.

Way back in September we elected Sue Naeher house president. We couldn't have chosen a better girl, and we'll never forget her, nor her wonderful personality. Speaking of personalities, we had four very important ones in our house—Trudy was President of Student Council; Betty, Vice President of the Council; Marie was Chairman of the Endowment Fund; and Trity was our Assistant Song Leader.

The night the seniors took Cap and Gown is one night which stands out in the minds of all of us. Never before was there so much excitement in Clark. Remember, too, the party we had the night before Christmas vacation, with hamburgers, onions, cheese, and cakes? And that coffee we made during exam week?

Clark was chosen as the house to try out the Honor System. It worked out very well, we thought.

On the memorable night of the Senior Prom so many plans were made, so much looked forward to...and then in one short evening it was all over.

With all the good times we've had together we know that in the years to come the thought of Clark will bring to our minds many happy memories.

Chandler

"I'm Going to Join the Air Corps, Will You Miss Me When I Go?" was the theme song of Chandler House, which was a center of excitement at almost any hour of the day. If you had opened the front door about seven in the evening, you would probably have heard the melodious voices of Kay, Anne, and Arline coming from the parlor, and Marion polishing off the ivories. From the smoker you could hear faint sounds of laughter, and banging from the rougher, more hilarious group. Probably you could distinguish the voice of Cookie on the telephone, above all this clamor, whispering sweet nothings to him over the phone.

'Most any night after dinner Vonnie and Scottie engaged in a heated bull session. Then there was the clamor from the "pent house"—"They're mine!" "No, they're mine!" It was just Polly and Essie fighting over the yellow socks. At least once a week our chefs, Cookie and Mary, prepared one of their delicious dinners, which left Dotty doing the dishes. The girls who were on restrictions (which was not very often) spent their week ends reading "canned love." Did a week ever go by without one of Winnie's telephone calls?

We were just one big happy family, with "Mom" at the head of it, and with Scottie and Vonnie settling things one way or another from morning till night. Remember how Miss Paddock's engagement and marriage created a romantic atmosphere throughout the whole household? Yes, it was a year we'll never forget.

Briggs

How near we were to the infirmary, and the short cut to meals and classes! Remember how Tita used to demonstrate the Conga, and also make almost nightly phone calls at one minute past nine? Carol had a real collection of popular recordings for her vic. Remember the luscious food in that big box her mother sent her? And M. J.'s Colgate man and her interpretation of "Intermezzo" on the keyboard? Peg's humor and her brilliant additions to the English language never failed to entertain us. Remember how Shirley headed for home every week end? Andy used to perch on the bottom step of the backstairs engrossed with the telephone, while from far below came shrieks of laughter in the smoker. The three musketeers—Dot, Nina, and Marcia—were busy people, with Dot prom trotting in town, Nina displaying her wit, and Marcia skipping home to Rhode Island.

Ruth was always smartly dressed. Weren't those Florida oranges juicy! Our energetic merchandisers Nina, Bea, Marcia, and Ruth returned after Christmas vacation from three weeks of "rest." Phyl's Boston Herald kept us posted on the news of the day.

We shall always remember our effervescent Bea and her O.A.O. Those get-togethers in the kitchen for a cup of hot soup or coffee were fun. Remember the hot water bottle episode after lunch one day? House meetings, fire drills, the Christmas party, defense work, blackouts, hilarious fun—all these made our year at Briggs an unforgettable one.

Cushing

Cushing of '42 will long be remembered—at least by its present occupants—for who could ever forget our two great teachers—Miss Perley and her love of cats, Miss Whittemore with her Mexican curios. How we loved to gather for a house meeting with Pep Annis, the president of Cushing, and then have a “bull session” after ten, often listening to fascinating tales of China from Dolly. Arising each morning to Jeanne’s “Hey, in there...it’s twenty-five after!” is also one of the unforgettables, as are Sybil’s and Elaine’s daily phone calls followed by the arrival of those smooth cars at Cushing’s door.

Cooking dinner on rainy nights was certainly fun; and how we enjoyed getting food from home. Those feasts were really something. Some nights we used to dash en masse to dinner at 6:01. We had such fun popping corn by Miss Perley’s fireplace on cold evenings, too. Certainly no one who listened in could forget Dolly’s, Pep’s, and Mary’s heated discussion about Picasso. Remember Zimmie’s Puerto Rican records that everyone tried to dance to, but gave up for jitterbugging, which in turn had to be given up because of Berkie’s cracked ceiling? And remember the week ends when Jeanne and Marty used to dash off to Dartmouth and Cornell house parties, and the excitement Marty’s George caused when he breezed in on the week end?

What a delight it was to bask in the sun on Cushing’s upper porch.

These memories of life at Cushing we can never forget.

Dillingham

Remember the night we tripped rather reluctantly down to an old fire drill to find the "bestest" spread of delectable goodies that were ever set before hungry eyes—the Hallowe'en party?

And remember how, when the phone would ring, some hopeful would yell, "Who is it for?" Then, like an echo almost resounding with a deep and sorrowful sigh, came the usual "Miss Eliasson."

Can we ever forget Margot's ever-burning candle? Carrying the torch for Johnny? Remember the dinner for nine with all the trimmings? "Cook Crowell" was famous for her super hamburgers and onions. Wasn't Ella a real friend! Bless her for her kindness to us "chilluns." Remember how Amy packed, bag and baggage, leaving the rest of us big-eyed aspirants of a rare holiday, only to plunge deep into the depths of matrimony.

Remember Sally's gala birthday surprise? And the time we took Fern snipe hunting? Elsie was forever giving the house gray hairs coming in late from her radio course. Can we ever forget Eastie's clothes sale after ten so she could go on a sudden super week end at Colgate? Or the time that Jayne got that phone call all the way from North Carolina from her soldier? And the wonderfully free atmosphere that swept through the house after the rush of exam week? How glad we were when Anne's mother had "teas"—cuz then Dillingham had colossal feasts. Remember Louise's week-end jaunts?

We'll always cherish these happy memories of our year at Dillingham.

Senior Day Students

Toot, toot, make way for the day students—almost half of the student body. Frolicsome, mischievous, hard-to-punish day students, we spent a good part of 1941 and 1942 driving between our homes and Lasell. Alone or in a rollicking car full of fellow commuters, we arrived every morning from outlying cities and towns. Early in the morning and late in the afternoon we could be seen waiting for busses and street cars, waiting for each other, waiting for trains, or, just waiting.

Sometimes late to the first class, we made a dash to Miss Beede's office for a pink slip. We came to rely on Miss Beede for everything, a last minute call from home, "I'm sick, Miss Beede, I can't possibly come to school today," or "Miss Beede, may I cut the last class and go home? I don't feel well."

All day long up and down Woodland Road our cars plied their way packed sardine tight, yet the welcome, "Hop in, there's room for one more!" was always forthcoming. Miracles of car packing were common enough, and went comparatively unnoticed; but miracles of car parking brought that inevitable announcement in assembly, "Will the owner of car number 000,000 please move it at once?" Or the other unavoidable, "Please register your new plate numbers with the office at once."

Actively interested in most of the extra-curricular affairs, we had our fingers in everything. We were represented on the Executive Council, on the honor rolls, in the Dramatic Club productions; we swelled the membership of clubs, enthusiastically knitted and played bridge in the Barn, did Red Cross and volunteer hospital work, went out for sports, and on the side had an ample social life.

We were lucky in some ways—no demerits, no restrictions, no permissions, no homesickness, no set study hours, no dressing for dinner, we had lunch wherever our whims carried us. Lunch was the happiest part of our day! Books were discarded and there was a social period of fun plus food. When we say “wherever our whims carried us” we mean it literally, for we never ate in the same place for five consecutive days if we could possibly help it. We had cokes and sandwiches in the Barn, hamburgers at Jane’s, clam rolls at Johnson’s, sundaes at the Georgianne—all that hunger craved, and all within the radius of a few gear shiftings and a couple of red lights. Also convenient was Norumbega with all its possibilities. Will we ever forget the carefree hours spent amid the camera-shy ducks whose pictures we finally did succeed in snapping, and the splashing of the more antagonistic of the Anatidae? We spent many happy hours in the Day Students’ room, laughing, clowning, trying in vain to study, practicing talks for speech class, passing out the fruits of our labor in the cooking classes (modestly demurring, “Shucks, ’tweren’t nothin’” to the praisers of our culinary ability). And then, there were those rare moments when a sleepy commuter, by dint of perseverance, actually did succeed in catching forty winks during a free period.

Numbered among the day students were some of Lasell’s most attractive girls, and, attractive or just fair, we had friends in all the nearby men’s colleges. Remember the day hops who were so willing to introduce their male friends to you? Remember how cooperative we were about fixing anyone up for a dance? Remember the times we took you, your luggage, chatter, and hat boxes to the station just in the nick of time? Remember how willing we were to use our cars for class field trips?

If we weren’t parked in the Barn or in the upstairs rooms of Carter Hall, we were probably lounging in some resident’s cozy quarters. Day hops who had been resident students, residents who had been commuters, all mingled, all had the same interests. We double-dated, went out together after proms, and made some lasting friendships.

Though the day students were not in some ways as integral a part of Lasell as were our sister Lasellites, we contributed our share to the college activities and those of us who gave the best got the most out of those happy years of work and play.

Bragdon

The fall of 1941 brought new juniors to Bragdon. In November our Open House gave us an opportunity to become acquainted with members of the faculty as well as the students.

To create a more friendly feeling between the larger junior houses, the Brag-don girls invited the Woodland girls for dinner. Woodland returned the invitation.

Although we shall find entering a senior house next fall an exciting experience, we shall all leave Bragdon with a feeling of sadness, for we have spent a happy year here together.

Woodland

Woodland, the largest junior house on campus, was packed with fun, and a year of real comradeship. Remember all those bridge games, the fraternity pins, and blind dates? The dash for the smoker, nightly gym classes on the third floor, that hula skirt and "Green Eyes" are all among our treasures. Remember the tears of Commencement week, those last farewells to our senior sisters, and the excitement of waiting to be seniors ourselves?

No, we'll never forget Woodland.

Hawthorne

Hawthorne, originally a dormitory in a boy's school, later bought by Lasell, and moved in two separate sections to its present location, was inhabited by ten happy juniors. What excitement there was at Hawthorne on November 11 when Trudy Baninger won fifty dollars!

False fire drill brought many screams of delight. Remember when Miss Worcester and Miss Luce gave us that surprise Christmas party?

We were very proud of our house president, Betty Edwards, and of our representative on the junior council, Joan Moller. We did our bit in Red Cross work, coming in third under the careful supervision of Pat Rogers. During blackouts Hawthorne wasn't worried about petty thieves or incendiary bombs because Martha Maddock was on patrol.

Birthday parties were always popular events, and we dearly thank Florence Pechilis's mother for that delicious home-cooked food.

One night Hawthorne cooked its first dinner at home with Helen Fisch acting as dietitian. Enily Post might not have approved of our manners, but was it our fault if there weren't enough forks?

Doris Lamb and Ruth Purcell, the missing links in the house, could always be found conscientiously playing bridge down at the Barn.

About all we can say of Mary Coniaris is that she lived in Hawthorne. Most of the time she was in Gardner Laboratory making up an anatomy test.

It was a happy year—one we'll always remember.

Draper

The little square house with the green shutters, at the top of Hawthorne hill—that's Draper. Remember those first days when the kitchen was full of trunks and we dashed around to find our senior sisters? Then came those gasps of courage as we descended the stairway to meet our super-human blind dates, and Bab's rush from Harvard. We'll never forget our "Uncle Dave," either—Draper's shelter in rain or shine, or our first formal at Lasell—one mad scramble of "borrowed splendor." That was a famous night before Christmas vacation when we all invaded one room with cokes, spam, and tired eyes. How we shrieked with delight as we found one another after Christmas. Remember the nightly phone call for Priscilla, the boiled coffee with the gritty grounds before mid-years, and Draper's familiar cry, "Has anyone any food?" We'll never forget the frustrated femmes and those budgets, Lynne and her passion for Frank Sinatra's silvery voice, and our frequent fire drills. Came the Senior Prom, and Draper girls dashed to Gardner to help get their little seniors all lovely. We'll always remember Patsy's "Long distance—Han-over calling" episodes, Jeanne's well-known sketches of Lasell, and those fast and furious knitting sessions. Remember Peg's pet, the cowboy song, and her yodeling in the shower? Then came Nance's departure after an untimely automobile accident. Our first blackout was exciting as were the preparations for the Junior Prom and the Mav Cotillion. These are the memories we have of the little house at the top of Hawthorne hill.

Junior Day Students

What is the racket outside Bragdon at approximately eight twenty-nine? Why is there a traffic jam on Woodland road? Who are these females, with coats flying open and mountains of books clasped to their chests, running up the hill? The day students are arriving.

In September we junior day students came shyly. We felt a little out of things, at first, not living on the campus. Soon, however, we learned that the activities of the school were ours as much as the resident students', and better still we learned that ours was a carefree existence with no demerits, and no restrictions, and no Sunday vespers.

With some regret we have missed the companionship of a roommate, luscious midnight feasts, and Miss Potter's "Little Dove" meetings, but all year we have been able to come in at two o'clock in the morning without a note from the Dean. Two D's have meant a serious lecture from father, but no restrictions.

During Junior Week we shared the tortures with the rest of our classmates. Remember how self-conscious we felt with those big cardboard signs sticking out from under our books, and how embarrassed we were when the black stockings we were carrying in our pockets to put on in the Day Students room after we got to school, fell on the floor in the trolley car? What a joy it was to get home those days to a nice peaceful place where we could let our hair down and not have to recite poetry.

How many times we have missed catching the early bus to wait for the afternoon mail. With everyone else we watched it being sorted out even though we knew that few letters would go down, down to our boxes. Just the same we had to look. To get to our boxes, which were on the bottom rows, we had to either break our backs, or get a run in our stockings, but a faint hope compelled us to go way, way down. Bowdoin! Misery! We shared our boxes with another day student. Well, there was always the consoling fact that maybe he had sent the letter home.

Finding letters is one thing, but we all occasionally have found a gay little pink slip nestling in the bottom of our mail box reading "You were absent from—" Assembly, or Orphean, or just French 3 on Monday. "Please leave a note at my office immediately." You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool Miss Beede—ever!

Through the smoke-laden air in the Barn one can dimly make out the faces of her neighbors. Three people at the left are hunting for a fourth for bridge. From the crowd around the soda fountain (bless it) you would think it was a table in a bargain basement. The difference is that this is the Barn at noon, and the war cry "Two hamburgers!"

Every noon the day students took over the Barn, that is, those of us who were too lazy to walk to Woodland or Jane's, or who couldn't find room in a car going to Howard Johnson's.

We have been able to leave the campus without permissions, without signing out. Nevertheless we have stayed on the campus a lot more than we have the reputation for having stayed. We stayed to see our friends, to go out for hockey, volley ball, ski club, and crew, or to decorate for the Junior Prom; we supported, and in many cases were the leaders of the extra-curricular activities of the school; we enjoyed bringing our dates to the dances and plays, and occasionally even to Vespers. We have helped do our bit for the U.S.O., and the Social Service Organization. Even on the Honor Roll we have been evident.

We have saved from many a mile of wear the valuable rubber heels of resident students by running a courtesy taxi service from Bragdon to Woodland. We are part of the local color, for we have lived near Lasell, and probably will continue to live near for a long time. Maybe when we become stately seniors we shall become less flighty, but until then we are the junior day students, a happy, and very important part of the class of '43.

Sophomore Class

The Sophomore Class of 1942 opened its year successfully with the election of the following class officers: Jean Barnes, president; Elizabeth Barrow, vice-president; Marilyn Anderson, secretary-treasurer. Miss Hoyt was chosen as class advisor.

The class this year consisted of twenty-one members, a considerably larger number than last year's class had: Priscilla Abbott, Marilyn Anderson, Jean Barnes, Elizabeth Barrow, June Carew, Nancy Elliott, Elizabeth Hall, Tevis Huber, Jane Goodwin, Jessica Kennedy, Shirley McDuff, Natalie McKenzie, Shirley Marks, Claire Nolan, Alice Sears, Harriet Sears, Jean Sellar, Beverly Van Norstrand, Virginia Warner, Barbara Watson, and Virginia Wolfe.

At our first class meetings we all became better acquainted, and now at the end of the year, we have become good friends.

As a class we have shown our spirit in many ways. We sent flowers to one of the girls, who was ill in the hospital. When the seniors took tables, we sophomores, as is the custom, sent gifts to our "sisters". This year we provided the two head tables with centerpieces of white carnations. In Lasell sports we have also taken an active part. We were especially well represented in basketball, for we organized our own team. The following girls played on the team—Marilyn Anderson, Claire Nolan, Alice Sears, Virginia Warner, Harriet Sears, and Shirley Marks.

One of the treats of the year came when the junior class invited us to attend the Junior Prom.

Some activities we planned were not, through unavoidable circumstances, carried out, but we were kept very busy, anyway. As a final highlight of the year we held a class banquet, which proved a fitting climax to our happy year at Lasell.

LILLIE R. POTTER

Our Dean Emerita, Miss Potter, will ever hold a cherished place in our hearts.

During our first bewildering days at Lasell, we heard of a genial lady who had been graduated with one of the early classes of Lasell Seminary. Later, we came to know her famous Sunday night "White Dove Meetings," and after attending them, we left her cozy room in Bragdon Hall with a feeling of having come in contact with someone truly inspiring.

We remember those formal birthday dinners in Miss Potter's honor, when each girl contributed as many pennies as she was old, an amount which Miss Potter unselfishly donated to charity. We remember her interest in former students, an interest which was constantly attested by her work as Personals Editor of the Leaves.

And lastly, we remember her leading the singing at Vespers, with a happy glow on her face because she was proud of her "white doves," just as her "white doves" are proud of her!

Epilogue

Reluctantly we leave the Crow's Nest for the last time. Though we know we shall come back some time, we realize that it will never be the same.

Our two years of work and play have ended; all the events we anticipated as juniors and all the functions we have carried out as seniors, are things of the past.

With the passing of this phase of our lives, some of us have closed our school books never to study again; others will seek further knowledge in various institutions. Thus, we who have been brought together from all sections of the country and who have come to know each other so well, must part. From Lasell, we shall radiate in every direction, never to be brought together again as the entire Class of '42.

But no matter where we go, no matter what we do, we shall always share the memories contained within this book. To the friends we have made, and to Lasell, we shall always be "Faithful Forever!"
